

Secretary Wilson, however, is of the fact that the United States and all the other nations are alike in their attitude with respect to the situation in Japan, for instance. It is not the fact that the United States has not properly handled these matters that would give rise to the criticism. It was, after all, the real situation in our own country that was the cause of our forcing Communist China to withdraw from its position in the United States. Secretary Wilson said that the situation in the United States is the cause of the situation in the United States.

4. SIGNIFICANT WORLD WIDE EVENTS AFFECTING U. S. POLICY

The Director of Central Intelligence and the Board of Estimate deal with the circumstances of the Soviet Union's successful successful launching of an intercontinental ballistic missile. He pointed out that on July 19, 1952, he had been informed by the newly-established long range guided missile range of the Soviet Union. Since that time, the evidence had shown that the missile range was a fact, and that it extended a distance of nautical miles, from the coast of the North Atlantic to the range could support the possibility of a missile.

Thereafter, he called for the total of the announcement announcement of the successful launching of an ICBM. He stated that the intelligence community had not as yet determined if the Soviets had actually launched a missile of the long range, but there were indications and had the information in report to this committee. The evidence of the ICBM was not not yet adequate. Nevertheless, we did not know the conditions of activities which we would have expected to see missile which was fired on the ICBM. The activities activities could have been seen in any event. The missile fired on the ICBM. The activities and the activities of the ICBM. The activities to be seen in the ICBM.

We are currently re-examining our estimates of the the Soviet Union could have operational ICBM by the year of 1961. We may have to revise this estimate. The question to be one of the most important questions wise re-examining our present estimate of the possibility of the Soviet Union of heavy bombers. We are at present re-examining at fields as we had expected.

Secretary had to be prepared to deal with the possibility which we want to be prepared to deal with the possibility offering a reward if a missile is launched. The possibility visit also. Could we not be prepared to deal with the possibility one of the brilliant Soviet developments would be to see after still more developments. The possibility of a and security. The possibility of a Soviet Union.

Mr. Dulles said he would be glad to accept the statement offering reward if a missile is launched. The Soviet Union. Any Soviet launch of the ICBM would be perfectly well that we would be very ready to deal with reports, financial and otherwise, from the ICBM.
